

L&M Policy Research

Research excellence. Health care expertise.

“Drawing upon extensive experience in health services delivery, program management, and policy development, L&M contributes valuable expertise for addressing complex issues and projects.”

— Robert Otto Valdez, Ph.D., Executive Director, Center for Health Policy
The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation

L&M Policy Research is dedicated to providing high-quality research to assist government and private organizations in improving health care across the United States.

Located in Washington, DC, L&M combines a deep knowledge of public and private health care issues with extensive experience in qualitative and quantitative research methods and health services management and operations. This distinctive perspective yields research that is both insightful and practical.

Working in close partnership with clients, we take a personalized approach that allows us to respond to changing requirements, save precious time and resources and consistently achieve client goals at a good value.

We take great pride in routinely providing clients with the highest quality of research and reports on time and within budget.

Our combined dedication to client objectives and impeccable research integrity has earned us a reputation as a trusted, reliable research partner.

The Team

Since its founding in 2004, L&M has grown to include researchers, economists, former health care administrators, public health specialists and policy experts.

With decades of collective health care experience, the firm continues to be led by its two founders.

Lisa H. Green, Ph.D.
Founding Principal

Lisa has worked for more than 18 years in the area of health care cost, access and quality issues, directing program evaluations and multi-method research projects with a focus on federal health care programs.

Myra A. Tanamor, M.P.P.
Founding Principal

Myra has built a career over more than 20 years, researching health communications and outreach and assessing health care programs and services, including conducting numerous Medicare consumer research projects.

Services/Capabilities

From overseeing multi-year projects with subcontractors to directly managing small individual projects, L&M has proven experience across a range of research services.
